The diagram consists of a trapezoidal shape defined by a top slanted line and a bottom horizontal line. Below the horizontal line is a grid of 9 columns and 4 rows of shaded gray cells. The top horizontal line is divided into 9 segments by vertical lines. The second, third, and fourth segments from the left are further subdivided by horizontal lines into three smaller cells each, creating a total of 15 cells in the top row. The remaining three segments (fifth, sixth, and seventh) are single cells. The eighth and ninth segments are also single cells. The four rows of shaded cells below correspond to these 15 columns.
